

Guide students' research by connecting them to your online library

There's a flood of information out there on the web. So how do students gain access to reputable resources?

Well, they could start by searching the internet via popular search engines. However, there's no guarantee that what they find will be accurate, trustworthy and citable.

That's where a discovery service comes in. With EBSCO Discovery Service™ (EDS) students enjoy access to your library's resources through a single search box.

Plus, EDS integrates Research Starters — short Wikipedia-like summaries and authoritative overviews of more than 70,000 of the most popular topics.

Students can conduct quality research faster with EDS with no need to wade into the murky waters of the web. What's more, your library resources get a boost in usage.

Want to see for yourself?
Start your free trial.

